4.Methodology, learning tasks, syllabus and resources

4.1.Methodological overview

A main part of the course consists on a set of activities oriented towards the study of human figure and grounded in the production of various kinds of drawings from life. For that matter, the graphic study of movement and dynamic processes of form, and gesture in graphic expression and composition, are the main course contents.

Another part of the course focuses on the development of personal drawing propositions by the students, in connection with different topics and contexts of contemporary drawing practice. These drawing proposals will take the form of project-like activities where research processes, personal motivation, openness to group dynamics, and interdisciplinary approaches, will become relevant aspects.

25127 - Drawing Workshop

Finally, the course is conceived as a workshop on the study, elaboration, and implementation of the main drawing techniques, procedures, and materials.

4.2.Learning tasks

The course includes the following learning tasks:

1. Studies of human figure in motion in the class (24 hours): practical and unhurried production of drawings from life model poses (or sketches), usually on a 100 x 70 cm paper format, using charcoal, lead pencil or crayon. Different types:

- Analytical
- Of expression
- From memory and retention.

2. Studies on human figure composition in the class (24 hours): practical and unhurried production of drawings from life model poses (or sketches) in specific contexts, usually on a 100 x 70 cm paper format, using charcoal, lead pencil or crayon. Different types:

- Analytical: interaction between figure, objects, and space
- Of portrait
- Landscape and urban sketching (with figure).

3. Sketching exercises in the class (12 hours): practical and lively execution of drawings in small format (usually any technique) from life model poses, three-dimensional models, or external references from landscape or indoor spaces.

4. Elaboration and implementation of drawing techniques and procedures (class sessions: 10 hours. Autonomous work: 20 hours). It should be understood as an experimental elaboration of media, materials and instruments, from the study of the main techniques and procedures. It entails collaborative work.

5. Theoretical demonstrations of the syllabus in class (10 hours). Specific sessions will be carried out (about 1 h) and also short presentations inserted in the main practical work.

6. Personal drawing proposal exercise (autonomous work: 40 hours). It should be understood as the development and production of a personal project in which the learning outcomes will be integrated. It consists of a set of drawings (no more than five) and focuses on the use of a particular technique or procedure. A written report will be included.

7. Artist's book (autonomous work: 60 hours). It should be understood as the production and collection of drawings done throughout the course separately from other planned activities. It provides a space for personal research and for the development of the various planned learning outcomes. Partly, it will be produced using materials, techniques or procedures made by the students.

4.3.Syllabus

The course will address the following topics:

1. Motion drawing. Gesture drawing. Drawing from memory and retention. Graphic analysis of movement: analysis of sequences. Anatomical and structural factors of human motion. The gait. Synthesis and expression of dynamic forms. Drawing and narrative.
2. Drawing and composition. Formal articulation and volumetric interlinkage. Composition factors: geometric structuring, chiaroscuro, texture, depth, and colour. Study of details. Portrait drawing. Outdoors and indoor drawing
