1.General information

1.1.Aims of the course

The future ESL teacher must develop the ability to reflect critically about existing materials to evaluate the extent to which they allow us to target the contents and objectives set out by the curriculum and, more particularly, to evaluate how they contribute to develop the written and oral skills of Primary students, as well as their communicative competence in that language. In addition, the future ESL teachers must be capable of adapting and supplementing existing materials to cater for the specific and changing needs of their students, in addition to providing differentiated instruction for students with different levels, learning styles and interests.

1.2.Context and importance of this course in the degree

This subject focuses on the application of specific communicative principles, which are also studied in other subjects in this major (Learning and teaching EFL and Planning effective teaching), for the evaluation, adaptation and design of resources which will promote the development of communicative competence of Primary students. This subject, together with the aforementioned two other courses, will help students to plan and develop efficient learning and teaching processes in the Primary ESL classroom.

1.3.Recommendations to take this course

Students are advised to attend classes and participate actively in the activities proposed. These activities will require a minimum proficiency in English equivalent to B2 of the CEFR.

Students will also need to complete the required readings in English dealing with the principles and fundamentals for the analysis, evaluation, adaptation and elaboration of materials for their implementation in the ESL Primary classroom.

2.Learning goals

2.1.Competences

2.2.Learning goals

1 Develops and evaluates curricular contents from the ESL curriculum for Primary Education by means of appropriate teaching resources which promote the development of students' written and oral skills (reading, writing, listening y speaking), as well as aspects of the English linguistic system (grammar, vocabulary and pronunciation)

2 Analyses and evaluates existing materials and resources for the teaching of ESL in the primary classroom and is able to adapt them to specific teaching contexts.

3 Adapts and elaborates original materials and resources which promote the students' communicative context attending to their specific needs and characteristics, taking into account the students' diversity.

4 Develops and implements both meaning-focused and form-focused tasks and activities which integrate the teaching of the different skills.

5 Knows and applies the information technologies as a tool to select and design appropriate activities which promote meaningful, cooperative and autonomous learning in the students in the ESL Primary classroom.

2.3.Importance of learning goals

Selecting, evaluating, adapting, planning and elaborating adequate resources are important skills of ESL teachers. More particularly, these skills are essential for Primary ESL teachers, who must develop the contents and objectives for their students' learning of the foreign language. The ESL teacher must be able to use materials and resources and to provide students with activities and tasks which will promote the development of the language skills, allowing students to communicate both orally and in writing about topics of their interest related to their close environment. The materials used in class and at home are instrumental for achieving that objective. Hence the relevance of this subject, which focuses on resources for the EFL classroom.

3.Assessment (1st and 2nd call)

3.1.Assessment tasks (description of tasks, marking system and assessment criteria)

1: Option A

Students attending a minimum of 85% of the sessions can be assessed through the following evaluation activities:

1. Analysis and critical evaluation of materials and resources for developing the macroskills: Teaching speaking and reading (10 marks)

2. Analysis and critical evaluation of materials and resources for developing language systems: Teaching phonics, lexis and grammar (10 marks)

3. Planning and elaborating communicative tasks: developing the macroskills (20 marks)

4. Implementing classroom tasks and activities (peer teaching): storytelling, listening, speaking, etc. (20 marks).

5. Final written exam: the exam should provide evidence of the student's adequate grasp of the main concepts, principles and techniques studied during the year (40 marks)

To pass the subject students will need to obtain a total of 50 marks to pass the subject. A minimum of 40% of the total mark for each assignment is also required.

2:Option B

Students who do not attend classes regularly will be evaluated based on the following assessment activities:

Aquellos alumnos que no asistan a clase de manera regular podrán acogerse a esta modalidad de evaluación que incluirá las siguientes actividades:

1. Planning elaboration and presentation of communicative tasks developing communicative competence (40%)

2. Final exam covering the contents of the subject (60%)

To pass the subject students will need to obtain a total of 50 marks to pass the subject. A minimum of 40% of the total mark for each assignment is also required.

3:Second Call:

The evaluation activities for the second evaluation call will be identical to those in evaluation option B. The marks obtained in the assignments pertaining to option A will not be taken into account to calculate the final mark.

Evaluation criteria

1: The number of activities and tasks which students will have to select, analyze, design and implement will be established by the teacher. Students being assessed in option A and B will need to submit different assignments. The final exam will be the same for both option A and B; the relative grade assigned to this exam will be different depending on the evaluation option (see above).

2: Option A

Assessment activities 1 and 2:

- Selection of activities and tasks based on the criteria established and the different teaching contexts.
- Appropriate application of the theoretical concepts and principles to the analysis and evaluation of resources.
- Analysis and evaluation of the activities and tasks attending to the contents and objectives of the curriculum
- Connection between theory and practice
- Adequate use of ICTs

Assessment activity 3:

- Activities and tasks attend to the contents and objectives of the curriculum
- Clarity and precision explaining objectives and context
- Complete, accurate and attractive presentation of materials and resources for the different activities and tasks.
- Originality and creativity in the elaboration of the tasks and activities
- Connection between theory and practice
- Adequate use of ICTs

Assessment activity 4:

- Ability to organize and manage their classmates in the implementation of activities and tasks.
- Clear instructions and explanations
- Ability to adapt the activity designed
- Ability to self-evaluate the development of activities
- Ability to evaluate the development of activities performed by their classmates.

Assessment activity 5:

- Understanding of methodological principles
- Connection between theory and practice
- Adequate application of the principles to the analysis of activities
- Adequate link between contents, objectives and different resources.

Assessment activities 1 and 2:

- Linguistic accuracy in the use of English; correct discourse and adequate style.

In order to pass the different assessment activities, both oral and written, students will need to demonstrate appropriate and accurate use of the English Language at a level equivalent or above the B2 of the CEFR.

3: Option B

Assesment activity 1:

- Activities and tasks attend to the contents and objectives of the curriculum
- Clarity and precision explaining objectives and context, as well as describing the activities
- Complete, accurate and attractive presentation of materials and resources for the different activities and tasks.
- Originality and creativity in the elaboration of the tasks and activities
- Connection between theory and practice
- Adequate use of ICTs

Assesment activity 2:

- Understanding of methodological principles
- Connection between theory and practice
- Adequate application of the principles to the analysis of activities
- Adequate link between contents, objectives and different resources.

Assessment activities 1 and 2:

- Linguistic accuracy in the use of English; correct discourse and adequate style.

In order to pass the different assessment activities, both oral and written, students will need to demonstrate appropriate and accurate use of the English Language at a level equivalent or above the B2 of the CEFR.

4. Methodology, learning tasks, syllabus and resources

4.1. Methodological overview

The learning process is centred on the learner, his interests and his training needs as a future ESL Primary teacher. The learning and assessment activities proposed aim at engaging students adopting an active and reflective methodology in which the teacher guides the learning process but is not the only source of information. The student is expected to work autonomously (completing readings, analyzing and elaborating materials) and also in group activities (taking part in classroom activities and peer teaching activities, among others), and to take control of his own learning process.

4.2. Learning tasks

A

- Lectures focused on the main methodological principles for the evaluation and design of teaching resources aimed at developing the four language skills and the language system in the Primary ESL classroom.
- Practical tutorials where students will evaluate tasks and activities from textbooks, resource books and audiovisual resources. In addition, students will adapt, elaborate and implement resources aimed at developing communicative competence in the Primary ESL classroom.
- Implementation, self-assessment and peer-assessment of the activities designed by students.

B

- Completing required and suggested readings
- Search and selection of activities and tasks
- Critical analysis of resources and learning tasks
- Planning and elaboration of resources and learning tasks

4.3.Syllabus

Contents

To achieve the learning outcomes set out above the subject is structured around the following contents:
