4.1.Methodological overview

The learning process designed for this course is based on a combination of theory sessions, teamwork, problem-solving activities and case studies, as well as the discussion of texts and papers.

4.2.Learning tasks

The programme offered to the students to help them achieve the learning results includes the following activities...

- Theory sessions: introduce the theoretical concepts together with real examples which facilitate the comprehension and application of these concepts.
- Case studies, elaboration and presentation of projects, discussion of current and emerging topics, essays, and interactive activities. All these activities will be carried out both inside and outside the classroom, individually or in groups.
- Tutorials and/or seminars: the professors will supervise the projects carried out by the students, clarify their doubts about the theoretical and/or practical contents of the subject, and propose specific tasks in which the theoretical concepts will be put into practice.
- Autonomous work: this includes the study of the theoretical and practical contents, the resolution of practical exercises, the development of individual and/or in-group activities, the search for and analysis of information, among others.

- Assessment activities.

The teaching delivery methodology is expected to pivot around face-to-face classes. However, if necessary for health reasons, face-to-face classes may be taught online.
