The methodology followed in this course is oriented towards the achievement of the learning objectives. A wide range of teaching and learning tasks are implemented, such as lectures, practice sessions, autonomous work, study and assessment tasks.

Students are expected to participate actively in class throughout the semester.

Further information regarding the course will be provided on the first day of class.

The teaching methodology is planned for face-to-face classes. However, if necessary for health reasons, teaching could be delivered on line

4.2.Learning tasks

The course includes the following learning tasks:

- Lectures. The professor gives lectures with the aim to transmit the main notions of the subject in a concise and pleasant way. In order to encourage the students' interest and participation audiovisual materials will be used. This stuff tries to illustrate the theoretical concepts working with real organizational cases. It is expected that student actively participates in the lectures initiating a discussion. These lectures will be held once a week and the following topics will be addressed.
- Practice sessions. Resolution and presentation of readings and case studies; papers elaboration and presentation; discussion of current topics; commentary on readings and interactive activities. These tasks could be developed both inside and outside the classroom, as well as, in an individual and/or group manner. Practices can be done using the Learning-Service methodology (ApS).

- Autonomous work and study. Includes activities such as theoretical and practical content study; resolution of practical activities; conducting individual and/or group works; and information seeking and analysis among others.

The assessment will be prepared to be carried out as face-to-face examination, but if health circumstances do not allow it, they will be carried out by doing it entirely online or in a blended way. In the case of online exams, it is important to highlight that, the student may be recorded, and he or she can exercise his or her rights by the procedure indicated in.
