3. LENGTH

The undergraduate dissertation should have a minimum length of 20 pages and a maximum of 40 pages, without annexes. The maximum length of the annexes is 30 pages

4. CONTENT

Cover page

The cover page format can be found in: <http://biblioteca.unizar.es/servicios/deposito-tfgtfm> It includes the title, the name of the degree, the author's name and surname, and the supervisor's name and surname.

The following page will include the author's name and surname, the supervisor's name and surname, the title (in Spanish and English) and degree. In addition, this page will include an abstract of 200 words (approximately), in Spanish and in English or one of the other languages offered for the B1 accreditation.

Introduction

The student should explain the purpose of his/her TFG; set out the reasons for undertaking this particular study, mention the possible applications to public or private organizations; mention the methodology he/she is going to apply or use; briefly describe the different sections and content of the dissertation.

Theoretical framework / Literature review / Contextualization

In this section the student should give a summary of the reading research that he/she has done into the topic area, describing the existing and established theory and research in the report area and providing a context for the work.

It is also important to contextualize the dissertation by referring to similar works in the same specific field of study, other findings in the same line, etc..

Methodology

Here the student will describe the scope of the research and all of the research methods he/she intends to use. This section starts by describing the process and the particular methods of research.

Analysis of results

This is the main body of the dissertation, where the student will describe the results obtained from the data that he/she has gathered during the research

Discussion and conclusions

In this section the general and specific conclusions must be presented. In addition, the student should explain if these conclusions are consistent with the objectives initially proposed and justify the work done.

It is important to stress the importance of the study again. That is, the student should explain the public, business or academic interest of the results obtained.

He/she may also describe any limitations or shortcomings in the research methods.

4.6. References

In this section the student has to include a list of all the sources he/she has used and referred to in the body of the dissertation: books, book chapters, journals, websites, reports, etc.

Here the student can find some guidelines:

Books:

SURNAME, NAME. (YEAR). Title. Publisher, Place of publication.

Articles in Journals:

SURNAME, NAME. (YEAR.): ?Title of article?. Title of journal , Vol. x, No. x, pp. x-y.

Websites:

SURNAME, NAME. (YEAR). Name of Webpage. [online]. Available: <http://?> [accessed: Date Month YEAR]

NAME OF UNIVERSITY/NEWSPAPER/WEBSITE, (YEAR). Name of Webpage. [online]. Available: <http://?> [accessed: Date Month YEAR]

4.7. Tables, charts, figures and graphs

It is recommended to use a double numbering system for tables, charts, figures and graphs (the first number for the chapter and the second for the order within the chapter).

4.8. Annexes

The student can include one appendix or several appendices in the dissertation which should be numbered (e.g. Appendix I; Appendix II, Appendix III, etc.). In this section the student should include:

- The questionnaire that he/she has used if he/she has carried out a survey.
- Any supplementary information which could be useful but which is not essential to understand the study.

4. Methodology, learning tasks, syllabus and resources

4.1. Methodological overview

The aim of the Dissertation is to enable students to apply and develop a range of skills and competences acquired throughout the Degree. Students are expected to show their competence in planning, writing and defending a piece of research on a topic. This process is mainly based on the student's autonomous work but his/her progress will be supervised by a supervisor in tutorials throughout the academic year.

4.2. Learning tasks

This course is organized as follows:

- Seminar (0.04 ECTS: 1 hour). The student is expected to attend an induction section in which guidelines for initial dissertation preparation will be provided.
- Tutorials (0.2 ECTS: 5 hours). Each student must have at least 4 hours where the tutor will guide and monitor the work. They can be face-to-face or online.
- Autonomous work (5.74 ECTS: 143.5 hours). To prepare the dissertation draft, the student is expected to engage in autonomous work (use of the library, reviewing the literature, writing the draft of the dissertation and revising the draft).
- Assessment (0.2 ECTS: 0.5 hours). Public defense and discussion.

4.3. Syllabus

Each student will choose the model for their Undergraduate Dissertation and the topic based on the offer made by the center. This offer will be updated every year.

4.4. Course planning and calendar

Schedule of basic activities under the supervisor's guidance:

1. Determining your topic, scope and purpose. It is strongly advised that the choice of topic and scope for your dissertation is completed by the first two weeks of the second semester.
2. Planning individual tutorials.
3. Progress reports (draft revisions).
4. Final editing and proofreading. The final version of the Dissertation will be handed in to the supervisor at least two weeks before the deadline for official submission. The specific dates of this course regarding the selection of supervisor, the submission and the public defense will be disclosed on each School web page, as well as the instructions for selecting the supervisor of the TFG.
