4. Methodology, learning tasks, syllabus and resources

4.1. Methodological overview

The methodology followed in this course is oriented towards the achievement of the learning objectives. A wide range of teaching and learning tasks are implemented, such as lectures, seminars, laboratory sessions, autonomous work and study.

4.2. Learning tasks

This course is organized as follows:

- Lectures. Teacher exposition of main ideas and concepts; detailed explanations with real-world examples of interventions.
- Seminars. Two to four hours a week. Seminars are focused on documents, webs and projects or programmes revision, debate and interactive dynamics.
- Laboratory sessions. Two to four hours a week.

For all sessions, previous autonomous work is required, based on available materials or by searching for specific information on a topic. All sessions include independent, pair-work and group activities. Classes attendance (in person and/or virtually) is important for an adequate learning process as it allows to develop the capacity for autonomous work, which is considered crucial for passing the course.

Due to the exceptional situation and the potential change in norms and recommendations referring face-to-face sessions' attendance, lectures and training sessions might be hold online.
