1. General information

It is necessary to corroborate that students are able to integrate all the knowledge and skills acquired throughout their training and apply them to a final project. This is necessary given that the contexts of professional development are varied and complex and future professionals need to be able to master different professional orientations.

In accordance with the regulations, students are required to present and defend their degree's final project (DFP) before a board of examiners in order to finish the degree. In it, they must demonstrate that they have acquired the necessary competencies to develop their future professional work.

These approaches and objectives are aligned with the following Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) of the United Nations Agenda 2030 (<https://www.un.org/sustainabledevelopment/es/>), so that the acquisition of the learning results of the subject provides training and competence to contribute to some extent to their achievement. Especially in relation to the following objectives:

A) On a priority basis:

3- Health and wellness.

4- Quality education.

B) In a cross-cutting manner:

5- Gender equality.

2. Learning results

- To carry out autonomously and with the tutoring of a teacher, an academic or specific practical project or laboratory project, or as a result of a stay in another university, related to physical, sporting and expressive activities, in which an interdisciplinary approach is recognized and in which as much as possible of the knowledge acquired during the training is applied in order to demonstrate the professional ability to work of the graduate in Physical Activities and Sport Sciences.
- Defend orally the project carried out (including a section in English or French), with communicative correctness, optimal audiovisual presentation, showing an appropriate attitude and solving the questions posed by the board of examiners with accuracy and relevance.

3. Syllabus
