4. Academic activities

Theoretical classes. The fundamental contents of the course program will be explained in the form of a lecture, being necessary to complement the teacher's explanations with the student's personal work.

Practical classes. With these teachings, the teaching staff will try to reinforce the theoretical contents, highlighting the practical dimension of the subject, through the resolution and discussion of cases, taken from the sentences of our courts, whenever possible.

Other complementary activities. Students may be asked to prepare papers and presentations on content related to the program, in order to deepen their understanding of the content. Seminars may also be scheduled with the participation of students at.

5. Assessment system

Mixed assessment system. It will consist of two parts:

Anticipated assessment. In addition to the student's participation both in the theoretical classes and, especially, in the practical classes, the teacher will assess the written resolution of the proposed cases, as well as the completion of other activities (preparation of papers, presentations, etc.).

Among the assessment criteria, the teacher will consider the application of the acquired knowledge, the handling of the sources and the argumentative capacity.

Students who pass the assignments will obtain a grade with a weighted value of 30% of the final grade, which will be saved for the second call of the term. Those who do not pass the early assessment must take the overall final exam in order to pass the subject.

Final knowledge test. At the end of the semester, students will take a multiple-choice exam with a minimum of 15 questions related to the subject syllabus. To pass the test it will be necessary to get 60% of the total of the questions right. For these purposes, wrong answers will not deduct the score obtained for correct answers.

In addition to the test, there will be some developmental questions on the contents of the program. In this regard, the knowledge acquired, the expository capacity and the precision in the use of legal terms will be taken into account at. This part of the final test will only be assessed if the test has been passed in accordance with the previous paragraph.

The knowledge test will be worth 70% of the total.

The final grade of the blended assessment consists of the weighted average of the advance assessment and the knowledge test. In any case, the student must obtain in each of the two blocks a minimum of 5 out of 10 for to pass the subject; only when this requirement is fulfilled, the average will be calculated for the purposes of the final grade.

Global final test system. It will consist of two parts:

Final knowledge test. This exam is governed by the guidelines set forth in the knowledge test of the mixed assessment system, having a value of 70% of the final grade.

Practical test. It consists of the written resolution of a practical case related to the contents of the subject, with which will be graded 30% of the final grade. For this purpose, the application of the law to the resolution of the case will be assessed, as well as the argumentation and substantiation of coherent conclusions.

The final grade will be the weighted average of the grades obtained in both tests. In order to pass the subject, it will be required that the student has obtained at least a 5 out of 10 in both parts; only when this requirement is fulfilled, the average will be calculated for the final grade.
